Tips to Prevent IDENTITY THEFT

Be aware of your surroundings when you're doing things like typing in, writing down, or voicing your PINs, passwords, and social security number.

Review your financial statements and accounts frequently so you can catch any unauthorized or suspicious charges or activity.

Check your credit report once a year — this will allow you to become aware of any unknown accounts that have been opened in your name.

Trust your instincts. Exit out of any fishy e-mails and hang up on any questionable phone calls requesting personal information.

Change your passwords frequently — making sure they're creative and varied.

Stay in touch. Let your financial institution know so they can mark your account and update your contact information to report any suspicious activity.

Go paperless. Have statements sent via e-mail or access them in your online accounts.

Report lost plastic. Immediately cancel any lost credit cards, debit cards, checks, or ID cards, and have them re-issued.

Shred away. Thoroughly destroy all documents, forms, and pieces of mail containing your name and information before you throw them out.
